

NYCEEC and NYC Accelerator: Helping Buildings Reduce Local Law 97 Penalties

Case Study in Collaboration: Pairing Technical Assistance from NYC Accelerator and Green Lending from NYCEEC

- The Opportunity: Brooklyn condo seeking to install solar
- NYC Accelerator provided upfront support:
 - Personalized assistance to navigate solar panel and roofing options
 - Connections to multiple, relevant lenders
- NYCEEC provided a competitive and flexible financing solution to complete the work.
- The Outcome: When completed, the resulting project (solar panel installation and roof replacement with insulation improvements) should help the building lower future Local Law 97 penalties, save money on utility bills, and improve occupant comfort.

What is Local Law 97?

Local Law 97 is a law focused on reducing building emissions. It imposes penalties on covered buildings that exceed certain emissions limits.

What resources are available?

Expert assistance and green financing solutions can help translate energy efficiency and clean energy projects from idea to reality, while also improving resident comfort and lowering energy costs. NYCEEC and NYC Accelerator can help.¹

Access Expert Support and Financing Solutions to Invest in Local Law 97 Compliance

www.nyceec.com
greenloans@nyceec.com
646.797.4630

www.accelerator.nyc
info@accelerator.nyc
212.656.9202

¹ NYCEEC (New York City Energy Efficiency Corporation) is a not-for-profit lender financing building energy efficiency and clean energy projects in New York City and the surrounding region. NYCEEC is not an agency of the City of New York. NYC Accelerator provides resources, training, and one-on-one expert guidance to help building owners and industry professionals improve energy efficiency and reduce carbon emissions from buildings in NYC.